

ANU Public Policy 2013 Social Policy Institute Launch

Wednesday 5 June 9.15am – 12.15pm, followed by lunch

Barton Theatre Level 1, JG Crawford Building 132, Lennox Crossing, ANU

Sound research and analysis are the basis for sustainable and equitable public policies. It is this foundation that the Crawford School recognises and seeks to highlight with the launch of the Social Policy Institute. An open discussion of the significance to the community of the research and policy engagement of a wide network of expert contributors in the social wellbeing arena.

Official launch by Professor Brian Howe, Professorial Associate, Centre for Public Policy, University of Melbourne. Former Deputy Prime Minister of Australia (1991-95).

Panellists include:

- > Professor Peter Whiteford, Director, Social Policy Institute, Crawford School of Public Policy, ANU
- > Dr Ann Nevile, Crawford School of Public Policy, ANU
- > Professor Robert Bruenig, Crawford School of Public Policy, ANU
- > Associate Professor Adrian Kay, Crawford School of Public Policy, ANU
- > Associate Professor Bingqin Li, Crawford School of Public Policy, ANU

This event is part of ANU Public Policy 2013 which brings together world-leading experts on public policy, from academia, the public service and industry to address issues critical to Australian policymakers and—crucially—propose possible solutions, ideas and innovations.
