

Aid for health and its influence on health systems

Friday 13 February 9 – 10am

Speakers

Professor Barbara McPake

Director of the Nossal Institute for Global Health
University of Melbourne

Ms Blair Exell

First Assistant Secretary
Development Policy Division
Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade

Image by Wikipedia

Location

Molonglo Theatre

Level 2, JG Crawford Building 132
Lennox Crossing, ANU

Registration at crawford.anu.edu.au/events

E macarena.rojas@anu.edu.au

T 02 6125 7922

This lecture is free and open to the public.

In the aftermath of the Ebola outbreak in Africa, aid for health is back on the global agenda in a big way. But what have we learnt from the last decade of investment? Do disease specific investments make sense? When is health system strengthening an illusion and when does it actually work?

Professor Barbara McPake is a health economist specialising in health policy and health systems research. Prior to taking up her position as Director of the Nossal Institute for Global Health, Professor McPake was Director of the Institute for International Health and Development at Queen Margaret University, Edinburgh. She has 25 years experience in these areas based in three UK university departments.

Ms Blair Exell, First Assistant Secretary, Development Policy Division, Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, will chair.

Presented by

Development Policy
Centre

Crawford School of Public Policy

ANU College of Asia & the Pacific

This lecture is part of the 2015 Australasian Aid Conference, February 12-13, 2015. For more information, go to: <http://bit.ly/1wSioya>

This lecture is presented by the Development Policy Centre at Crawford School of Public Policy, The Australian National University.

Further information about the Development Policy Centre: devpolicy.anu.edu.au

