Power Meri follows Papua New Guinea's first national women's rugby league team, the PNG Orchids, on their journey to the 2017 World Cup in Australia. These trailblazers must beat not only the sporting competition, but also intense sexism, a lack of funding, and national prejudice to reach their biggest stage yet. From the roughest suburbs of Port Moresby to the lush PNG highlands, Power Meri takes viewers on a captivating journey through rarely-seen corners of PNG, guided by young Papua New Guinean women who dream of changing their country through sport.

The screening will be followed by a Q&A session with PNG Orchids Head Coach, David Westley.

All money raised will support Femili PNG - a Papua New Guinean NGO assisting survivors of domestic and sexual violence to access the services they need.
